

Industry Insights First Half of 2011

Restaurant Industry

Overview

When the recent global downturn rocked the restaurant industry, the industry experienced three consecutive years of real sales declines – a first in 40 years. Thankfully, as the U.S. economy recovers from its most challenging period in decades, restaurant operators are beginning to see reasons for more sustained optimism. In fact, total restaurant sales are projected to reach a record $604 billion in 2011 (+1.1% real sales growth).

Riding on the back of a slowly recovering U.S. economy and the consequent rise in same-store sales, restaurant companies have posted improved results in recent quarters. Analysts expect solid, top-line trends to continue for the balance of the year; well-positioned companies are driving above-average traffic trends and enjoying modest pricing power. Although the industry is showing several positive signs, tepid consumer confidence, high gas prices and inflated food costs are expected to slow industry profitability. To win back cash-conscious guests and drive traffic, restaurant companies have been revamping promotions, modifying menus and introducing new items. These marketing initiatives help maintain the perception of strong consumer value while reducing reliance on discounts to drive traffic. Top-line growth is critically important to maintaining margins, as operators have less flexibility to aggressively cut costs and increase efficiency as they did during the height of the recession.

Overview

We remain optimistic about the balance of 2011, with consumers continuing to seek value, distinct dining experiences, convenience and enhanced menu deals amidst a steadily improving economic backdrop. We expect restaurant mergers and acquisitions (“M&A”) to continue at a pace consistent with 2010, driven largely by private equity investors with significant dry powder and access to debt capital financing.

We also expect large, cash-rich restaurant companies to intensify efforts to grow through acquisitions. We have started to see increased merger and acquisition activity among strategics, as evidenced by Groupe Le Duff’s acquisition of Bruegger’s and Landry’s acquisitions of Claim Jumper Restaurants and Bubba Gump Shrimp Company.

Key Themes for Balance of 2011

Cautious Outlook, Despite Gradually Improving Consumer Environment

Following lackluster consumer data for 2010, recent economic data is more encouraging, particularly on the unemployment front – but the overall consumer environment remains fragile. Many consumers have not fully recovered from the recession and continue to pinch pennies. Lately, a key concern is gas prices, which recently hit an average price of $4.00 per gallon nationwide. Consumers are extremely sensitive to high gas prices, which tend to discourage consumers from venturing outside the home.

An extended period of $4.00 gas would likely slow the broader economic recovery and curtail discretionary and entertainment spending outside the home.

Key Themes for Balance of 2011

Escalating Commodity Pressures

Key restaurant commodity costs (proteins, dairy, grains, etc.) moved higher in the second half of 2010, particularly in the fourth quarter. The trend continued in the first quarter of 2011, impacting many restaurant operators; notably, Texas Roadhouse experienced a steep earnings decline in the first quarter, largely due to increased input costs. With the price of coffee rising over 100% year over year, beef and pork increasing 25% and corn, wheat and oat soaring more than 80%, cost pressures are impacting the entire industry. While pricing power remains relatively weak, given macroeconomic uncertainties, margins will be squeezed further unless increases are passed on to customers. The choice for most companies will be to raise prices or take steps that ultimately decrease value to the customer, like reducing portion sizes – an action that may maintain margins in the short term but risks alienating customers. Given the spike in many commodity food prices in the last 12 months, pressures will hopefully abate in the near-term and result in stronger second half 2011 profit margins. This would be welcome news for operators.

Favorable Same Store Sales Data

The first quarter of 2011 saw continued improvement in same-store sales, despite rising input costs, rapidly increasing gas prices, and severe weather throughout most of the U.S. during January and February.

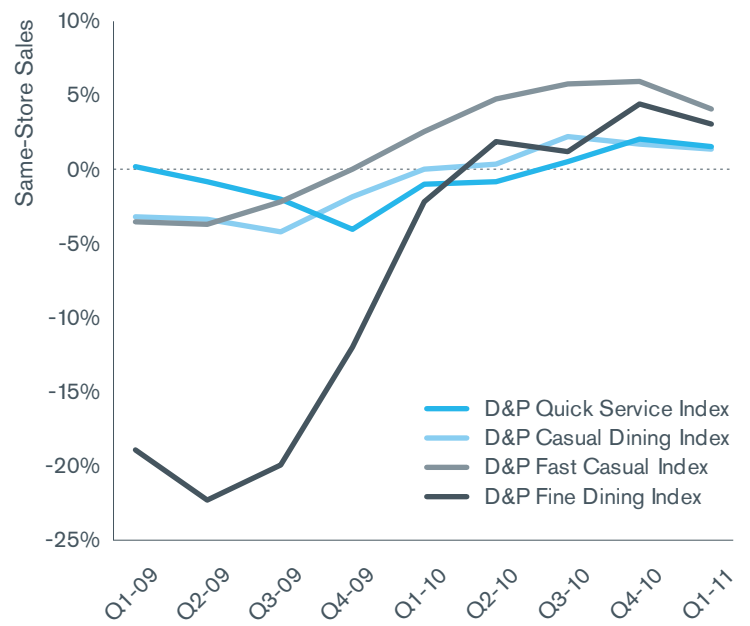

While the restaurant recovery is far from complete, the consecutive quarters of positive, same-store sales are important developments for an industry that saw some of its worst declines in many years. High unemployment and rising gas prices are continuing to weigh on the consumer, as evidenced by first quarter 2011 same-store sales being flat to down in all segments. Consensus same-store sales estimates among research analysts call for continued, albeit modest, same-store sales recovery in 2011.

Mergers and Acquisitions Update

M&A activity in the restaurant industry continues to be vibrant, driven largely by private equity firms with greater access to the capital markets. The three largest transactions were Landry's Restaurants take-private transaction and the acquisitions of Burger King by investment group 3G and CKE Restaurants by Apollo Management. Growth concepts Wing Stop, Papa Murphy's and Noodles & Company were also acquired. The total number of announced restaurant M&A transactions with total enterprise value greater than $25.0 million reached 18 in 2010, up from 4 in 2009, a significant uptick in deal volume. This trend has continued in the first quarter of 2011, with 8 transactions announced through May 2011 – including Roark Capital Group acquiring Corner Bakery Café and Il Fornaio, Golden Gate acquiring California Pizza Kitchen, Angelo Gordon acquiring Firebirds Wood Fired Grill and Groupe Le Duff acquiring Bruegger's.

Private equity sponsors – both experienced restaurant investors and new entrants – with approximately $500 billion in unused capital are expected to continue to drive restaurant M&A activity in 2011. These firms are attracted to restaurant companies' stable cash flows, reasonable valuations and "leveragable" assets, including owned real estate and franchised income streams and have access to much improved financing markets.

Strategic buyers have been absent from recent brand acquisitions, with a couple of notable exceptions: Luby's Inc., which bought Fuddrucker's, Le Duff who purchased Bruegger's, and Landry's Restaurants, which acquired Bubba Gump Shrimp Company and Claim Jumper Restaurants, among others. Landry's has also recently made and subsequently withdrew a proposal to acquire McCormick & Schmick's. It is expected that many of the larger strategics with maturing concepts will increasingly focus on acquisitions to drive earnings growth. According to National Restaurant News Darden is actively seeking acquisitions, and J. Alexander's and Yard House are candidates. Sbarro, which recently filed for bankruptcy, is being pursued by a foreign strategic buyer according to Sbarro's attorney. There are a number of companies that are exploring strategic alternatives including A&W Restaurants, Buffets, Long John Silver's, Arby's, Morton's and several others.

Mergers and Acquisitions Update

Notable Recent Announced Deals

Roark Capital Group Acquires Corner Bakery Café and Il Fornaio

On May 25, Roark Capital Group, owner of Focus Brands and McAlister's Deli, entered into an agreement to acquire the Corner Bakery Café and Il Fornaio brands from private equity firm, Bruckmann Rosser Sherrill & Co. The Dallas-based, fast-casual Corner Bakery chain operates 119 units, while the Corte Madera, California-based, full-service, upscale Italian Il Fornaio operates 21 locations. New York-based Bruckman Rosser Sherrill purchased Il Fornaio (America) Corp. in a management buyout in July 2001 and acquired the Corner Bakery Café concept from Brinker International in 2006. Roark Capital owns a number of restaurant companies and brands that primarily focus on the quick-service or fast-casual segments including Auntie Anne's, Carvel, Cinnabon, Moe's Southwest Grill, and Schlotzsky's, as well as a franchisee of the Seattle's Best Coffee brand.

GS Capital Partners Inks Investment in Apple American

On May 10, 2011, Goldman Sachs Capital Partners made a strategic growth investment in Apple American Group LLC, the largest franchisee of Applebee's Neighborhood Grill & Bar restaurants. San Francisco-based Apple American operates about 270 Applebees in 11 states. Participating in the investment and maintaining a significant ownership position are existing sponsor Weston Presidio and members of the Apple American management team, including its founder, chairman and chief executive Greg Flynn.

This is the second time Goldman Sachs Capital Partners invested in Apple American. The firm helped fund the acquisitions of 73 Applebee's units in 2001, taking majority control at the time. Weston Presidio then acquired the group from Goldman Sachs in 2005 for an undisclosed amount. Since then, Apple American has grown to 270 restaurants and 16,000 employees, with approximately $650 million in sales.

Angelo Gordon Buys Firebirds Wood Fired Grill

On April 25, 2011, Angelo Gordon & Co.'s private equity arm entered into an agreement to buy Firebirds Wood Fired Grill casual dining chain. Firebirds, based in Charlotte, North Carolina, was founded 10 years ago and consists of 18 Firebirds upscale casual restaurants in eight states. Firebirds' restaurants are generally around 6,500 square feet and are known for their wood and stone decor, indoor fireplace, and exposed kitchen with a wood burning grill. Founders Dennis Thompson and Doug Glendenning will continue as shareholders and directors of the company, and CEO Mark Eason will retain his role. Angelo Gordon, a New York-based asset management firm, manages more than $1 billion in private equity investments and makes control equity investments in deals ranging from $50 million to $500 million.

Brentwood Associates Buys Taco Bell Franchisee

On March 18, 2011, Brentwood Associates, a leading Los Angeles-based private equity firm, announced the acquisition of Taco Bell franchisee K-Mac Holdings Corp. It purchased the Fort Smith, Arkansas, restaurant operator from Stamford, Connecticut, sponsor Olympus Partners. Founded in 1964 by Ken McGruder, K-MAC has grown to become one of the largest YUM! franchisees in the U.S., operating over 190 Taco Bell, KFC and Golden Corral restaurants in the Southwest. Brentwood has teamed with Arlon Capital Partners' food and agriculture investment fund and Northwestern Mutual Capital on the equity investment.

Groupe Le Duff Acquires Bruegger's

On March 4, 2011, private equity firm Sun Capital Partners Inc. announced the sale of bakery-cafe chain Bruegger's Enterprises Inc. to La Madeleine parent Le Duff America, the North American subsidiary of Groupe Le Duff SA. Headquartered in Burlington, Vermont, Bruegger's is a leading operator and franchisor of fast casual bakery-cafes specializing in bagels, breads, wraps, signature sandwiches, hearty soups, gourmet coffee and desserts. The acquisition of the 437-unit Bruegger's by Groupe Le Duff establishes the France-based firm as one of the world's largest bakery-cafe companies, with sales of more than $1.5 billion, more than 1,110 restaurants and bakeries and approximately 13,400 employees. The combination of Bruegger's and Le Duff America presents new operational and growth opportunities for both bakery-cafe brands.

A Quick Chat with Jason Mozingo, Centerbridge Capital Partners

On November 15, 2010, Centerbridge Capital Partners, L.P. and its related entities (“Centerbridge”) formed CraftWorks Restaurants & Breweries, Inc. (“CraftWorks”) by closing on concurrent acquisitions of Rock Bottom Restaurants, Inc. (“Rock Bottom”) and Gordon Biersch Brewery Restaurant Group, Inc. (“Gordon Biersch”). The combined business becomes the nation’s leading multi-concept operator and franchisor of brewery and craft beer-focused casual dining restaurants, with nearly 200 owned and franchised locations across the U.S. The acquired companies will operate as subsidiaries of CraftWorks and will retain their brands. CraftWorks’ primary concepts include Old Chicago, Rock Bottom and Gordon Biersch.

Jason Mozingo, a Partner at Centerbridge, orchestrated these transactions and provided the initial vision for creating a leading organization in the craft beer and food segment of casual dining.

Jason, congratulations on the acquisitions of Rock Bottom and Gordon Biersch to form CraftWorks. Looking back on the genesis of this deal, what first attracted Centerbridge to the restaurant industry? What makes the combination of these leading beer-focused concepts so compelling?

Centerbridge has been looking at the restaurant space since our formation in 2006. In fact, we invested in the industry profitably during the 2007-2009 recession. We like the sector because of its steady cash flow characteristics and because of the opportunity to partner with management to create value through operational improvements and growth initiatives. The CraftWorks brands naturally fit together, as each is characterized by devotion to the customer, an entertaining atmosphere and a passion for world-class craft beer and made-from-scratch food. CraftWorks is fortunate to benefit from an attractive and growing end market, as craft beer continues to take market share from traditional, lower-quality mass product.

It has been six months since the transaction closed. What has been the most rewarding aspect of the integration process? The most challenging?

Mergers are never easy, and the most challenging part is always making sure you get the people part right. In our case, we were fortunate because we had a terrific team of thoughtful managers from both Gordon Biersch and Rock Bottom who were actively involved in the diligence process. During this time the management team, led by the CEO and Centerbridge, developed a plan that detailed CraftWorks’ long-range roadmap for growth and near-term actions to start us out in the right direction. As such, the first six months have been very tactical, as management has executed the plan developed during diligence. It has been terrific to witness improvements come to life through superior execution by a talented group of managers.

What are the most distinctive highlights of CraftWorks’ organic growth plan?

I think what separates CraftWorks from other casual dining restaurants is our unique focus on beverage (primarily craft beer) and the high percentage of revenue we derive from our most loyal customers. We emphasize our bar business and have numerous loyalty and club programs specifically designed to meet the needs of our enthusiastic customers. We believe that by staying true to our brand promise of delivering an exceptional food, beverage and service experience to our customers, we can grow at greater-than-market rates and thus take share. Our restaurants feel unique and offer a differentiated experience to our guests. We strongly believe the customer has “upped the ante” and expects more out of casual dining. The customer seeks places that consistently deliver the high quality food found in larger restaurant chains with the atmosphere, service and fun found in independent operations. We believe CraftWorks is well-positioned to deliver on both fronts.

Clearly there are plenty of organic growth opportunities for CraftWorks, but you’ve also expressed an interest in acquisitions. What is the acquisition strategy for CraftWorks? To take that one step further, what is your outlook for restaurant M&A in 2011?

CraftWorks, of course, was created out of the acquisition of two separate, but complementary companies. We will continue to look opportunistically for acquisitions that are true to our craft beer and food heritage. However, our primary goal is organic growth and promotion of our three flagship brands: Old Chicago, Gordon Biersch and Rock Bottom.

I think restaurant M&A will continue its robust pace in 2011. Activity in this sector began in 2010 mostly by private equity firms who view restaurant investing as a way to effectively play a macro recovery. As the consumer feels better, going out to eat is an easy and less risky way to reward one’s self and one’s family. Therefore, this sector tends to be a leading indicator and see an uptick earlier than consumer businesses that cater to larger-ticket, durable goods and services. I believe private equity investors liked what they saw in 2008-2009, as the industry took fixed costs out of the system, improved operations and maintained prime margins despite a challenging top line.

Jason, thank you for taking time out to speak with us. We wish you much success with CraftWorks.

Financing Market Update

The credit markets are open and rates, terms and required equity contributions have substantially improved for the best borrowers. Due to significant improvement in the secondary markets for restaurant loans, lenders are now competing for loans for new construction, remodeling and M&A, decreasing rates and easing credit terms. In general, the senior debt multiples for restaurant industry cash flow loans has remained relatively stable at 2.75x to 3.50x senior debt to EBITDA range, with total leverage topping out at roughly

3.75x to 4.50x (except for credits with EBITDA of $50 million or more where institutional markets are available). EBITDA fixed charge coverage of 1.20x and net-adjusted leverage of 5.50x are key metrics that govern transaction structure, and the average equity contribution in leveraged buyouts has dropped to just under 35% from roughly 45% in 2009 and 2010. The mezzanine market remains liquid with pricing at approximately 12-14% (10-12% cash and 2% PIK.)
