As EMIR reporting increases in maturity, ESMA and the National Competent Authorities (NCAs) are placing greater focus on the accuracy, validity and completeness of firms’ reporting submissions.

Duff & Phelps has assisted a large number of clients with all aspects of EMIR reporting, from submission reviews, best practice recommendations right through to remediation guidance, incorporating the latest updates in EMIR regulatory requirements.

EMIR REQUIREMENTS

Following the European Union’s adoption of the G20 commitments to increase transparency in the derivatives market and reduce systemic risk, EEA market participants have been submitting Over the Counter (OTC) and Exchange Traded Derivatives (ETD) to trade repositories since reporting became mandatory in February 2014.

EMIR has an extensive reporting obligation for EEA legal entities, impacting both OTC and ETD contracts. Since its inception, the number of reportable fields has increased significantly and includes collateral and valuation reporting.

EMIR reporting currently has 129 required fields, making it one of the largest and most complex reporting challenges for firms globally.

TOP CHALLENGES FOR EMIR REPORTING COUNTERPARTIES

From our experience in assisting clients with EMIR, we see firms facing many challenges; including:

1. Changing Standards – Keeping up to date with the latest RTS and ESMA Q&A.

2. Complexity – Interpreting and implementing the vast detail in the EMIR rules applicable to their business correctly and practically.

3. Rejections – Dealing with the root cause for, and remediation of, rejected reports.

4. Accuracy – Ensuring reports are not only valid, but also complete and accurate.

5. Inter-TR Reconciliation – Pairing both sides of a report and ensuring trade details are matching.

“I have been very impressed with the work undertaken by Duff & Phelps in helping us with a Trade Reporting review. The knowledge of the individuals we have worked with has been of a very high standard and they have quickly understood the complexities of our business and provided sound and pragmatic advice throughout the review.”
